ROME DECLARED AN OPEN CITY

Italian People Told "Allies Must Agree"

THE Italian Government on Saturday night formally declared Rome an "open city." The announcement came thirty hours after the second Allied raid on the capital.

Rome Radio stated yesterday that Allied agreement would be necessary first, and that the Allies must be allowed to ascertain that measures to render Rome an open city were carried out according to international law.

No early Allied response was expected in London last night.

The Italian people were yesterday told that the Badoglio Government's decision to declare Rome an open city could not come into effect without Allied agreement.

The announcement was broadcast by Rome Radio.

The Rome broadcast emphasised that the Allies must be allowed to ascertain that the measures to render Rome an open city were carried out according to international law, and said:

"It seems beyond doubt that open cities can still retain inside their walls military forces in normal garrison strength,' together with their arms and munitions, in order to maintain public order if they are called upon to do so.

"From then on all bombing attacks from the air are prohibited."

News that Rome had been declared an open city spread through the city like wildfire, said a French radio report.

"Special editions of the papers appeared bearing the words—'Rome Declared Open City' — in huge letters spread over the entire front page. Appearing on the day after the second raid, which hit certain quarters of the town so hard the Government's declaration could not fail to be hailed with deep satisfaction."

Rome radio, in an earlier broadcast to Great Britain, said: "The Italian Government decided as far back as July 31 to declare Rome an open city. If it was not till now possible to put into effect this decision, the responsibility certainly does not lie with the Italian authorities.

"The Italian Government has not yet been notified under what conditions the decision could be carried out. After having waited a longer time than was expected under the circumstances for an answer to come from the opposing sides, the Government proceeded without loss of time to declare the city of Rome an open city.

"Both the religious and civic conscience look upon this decision by Marshal Badoglio's Government as eminently satisfactory, because it has interpreted the sentiments of humanity and civilisation, which are eternally and inviolably impressed upon human consciences, beyond the reach of the changes and calamities of warfare."

The only reaction in official quarters in London was a statement that the attitude of the British Government was unaffected by the Italians' declaration. A unilateral declaration could not affect the full liberty of action of the Allied Commander-in-Chief.

NERVE CENTRES

"But it would seem certain that the higher military commands, that is to say, the 'nerve centres' of the war, can under no circumstances remain in an open city."

After the Allies had, through a duly accredited representative, ascertained that international law was complied with, a bilateral open city declaration would then be issued, said Rome radio, which added:

CROWDS CHEER THE POPE

Crowds which flocked to St. Peter's Square after the declaration of Rome as an open city offered up prayers of thanksgiving, says Vatican Radio.

The crowds cheered, and shouted their thanks to the Pope, who appeared twice at his window.—(Associated Press.)

2,500 Miles Flight To Raid Borneo

GENERAL Macarthur's Liberators have struck at Borneo for the first time in a 2,500-mile flight across the Pacific—the longest raid ever made by land-based bombers in the south-west Pacific, says Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied Headquarters, South-West Pacific. Despite intense A.A. fire, all the bombers returned to their base. The target was the vital oil centre of Balikpapen, 1,200 miles north-west of Port Darwin.

"The whole area was left ablaze," said Sunday's communiqué, "two large refinery groups were set on fire by the explosion of at least seven of the largest oil reservoirs. A medium cargo vessel in the harbour, probably a tanker, was set on fire with a direct hit from a 500 pound bomb."

The air offensive on Salamaua Japan's base in New Guinea, has grown in intensity during the past 24 hours. In two days 350 tons of bombs have been dropped. For two hours on Saturday bombs rained on the dock and west shore of the isthmus, and explosions and fires throughout the target area added to the havoc caused on Friday, when part of the town was wiped out.

Other raids in the New Guinea area included an attack on a convoy of barges creeping along the coast, seven of which were destroyed or damaged. The advance of the Allied ground forces closing in on Bairoko, last Japanese foothold in the northern tip of New Georgia continues.—(Reuter.)

Heavy bombers of the 10th U.S. Air Force dropped bombs on the runway at Pagoda Point on Saturday, hits being reported in the target area. In the Bay of Bengal two launches were attacked and one was left halted and disabled, says yesterday's U.S.A.F. communique.

Minister Struck in Cathedral

WHEN the Government Ministers were walking up the aisle of the Pro-Cathedral, Mariborough street, yesterday, to leave the church by the side exit, a small-sized, poorly-dressed man stepped out of the crowd and struck Mr. Frank Aiken, Minister for Co-ordination of Defence, a violent blow in the back of the neck.

Though Mr. Aiken stumbled forward under the unexpected blow, he walked on without even looking back. The assailant left the church hurriedly.

A man was afterwards taken into custody outside and handed over to the police.

Churchill was at Hyde Park

Mr. Winston Churchill returned to Quebec yesterday from Hyde Park, Mr. Roosevelt's home in New York State, where he and his daughter, Miss Mary Churchill, had been the guests of the President.

Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt have met in secret, says Reuter, and have completed the preliminary arrangements for the Quebec conference. Everything is now in readiness for the presentation of the broad plans formulated by the leaders for the Chiefs of Staff.

Mr. Roosevelt will join Mr. Churchill later at Quebec.

Mr. Mackenzie King, Mrs. Churchill, Mr. Malcolm Macdonald and Mr. Coleman Canadian Under-Secretary of State, boarded the train to greet the British Prime Minister.

Mr. Churchill began conferences with Allied leaders within three minutes of his arrival at the citadel.

After a talk with Mr. Mackenzie King, Canadian Prime Minister, Mr. Churchill lunched with the British Chiefs of Staff.

Sir John Dill, it was announced late last night, is in Quebec.

Lord Leathers and Canadian shipping officials were in active conference yesterday. They are reported to have discussed plans for moving still more men and materials to Europe in preparation for a big offensive against Germany.

The Associated Press adds that a reporter asked Mr. Churchill, on his return to Quebec: "What do you expect to accomplish?" Mr. Churchill replied: "What they call in the United States 'no comment.'"

An official announcement said:—"The Prime Minister of Great Britain, with his daughter, has been visiting the President and Mrs. Roosevelt at Hyde Park for three days, and has now returned to Quebec.

"President Roosevelt is returning to Washington, but he will join the Quebec conference this week."

MR. EDEN TO GO TO CANADA

The expected arrival shortly in Canada of Mr. Anthony Eden, the British Foreign Secretary, and Sir Alexander Cadogan, Permanent Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, which is reported from Washington, indicates that a common Allied policy will be adopted towards Italy, other Axis partners, the occupied countries, and Germany, says the Press Association Diplomatic Correspondent.

The Allied political policy in the Pacific, both now and later, will also be reviewed.

In all these matters the Russian Government will be consulted at every stage. Mr. Eden, who was so largely responsible for the Anglo-Russian pact, has always appreciated the outstanding part a powerful Russia will play in post-war Europe.

Mr. Eden may also take the opportunity of discussing the question of recognition of the French Committee by the British and American Governments.

Cause of Cowhide Shortage

Limerick City Tannery is faced with the possibility of a temporary suspension of work as from this week. Should the tannery be compelled to close down, the majority of the 150 employees will be affected, although a skeleton staff will be maintained. Mr. Arthur McCoy, a director of the firm, stated on Saturday that there was a considerable shortage of hides at the moment, and, as a result, his firm was unable to keep operating.

Mr. Richard McCarthy, Principal, Messrs. R. McCarthy and Co., fellmongers, Limerick, stated that the hide shortage was due to the fact that there was a considerable reduction in exports of dead meat.

"Territorial Ideas" of Russia

The Foreign Policy Association has suggested that Russia may modify some of her territorial ideas about mapping post-war Europe if granted one of her oldest demands—unhampered trade routes to the oceans, particularly to the Atlantic, a Reuter telegram from Washington stated last night.

It was stated that if access to the Atlantic was granted by way of the Baltic and the Mediterranean, Russia might not feel the need for dominance over territories adjoining the Baltic and Black Seas.

The Association pointed out that both Sweden and Turkey had expressed apprehension about post-war Soviet expansion and control.

English Coastal Areas Bombed

In a sharp attack, which began about midnight, over a town on the South-Eastern Coast of England bombs were dropped. A number of flares were observed, followed by high-explosives. The raiders ran the gauntlet of an anti-aircraft barrage.

Raiders were also active over other South Coast areas.

Bishop's Call for Prayers

In the course of a letter read in all the churches of the Diocese of Ardagh and Clonmacnoise yesterday, Most Rev. Dr. McNamee commended to the prayers of the faithful the Pope, now beset with so many difficulties and anxieties.

He also appealed for prayers for peace, and, particularly, for our own country.

AXIS TROOPS EVACUATING SICILY

Allies 18 Miles from Messina

ADVANCED Allied units in Sicily are now only eighteen miles from Messina, according to reports received this morning from Algiers and Cairo.

Rapid progress has been made since the fall of Randazzo, more towns have been captured, the Axis troops are retreating in all sectors, and the evacuation of the island is proceeding.

Allied planes are ceaselessly attacking both sides of the Messina Straits.

NAVAL ACTIVITY

Yesterday's communiqué from Allied H.Q., North Africa, stated:

"Considerable advances have been made in all sections in spite of heavy demolitions and difficult terrain. Eighth Army troops have occupied Fiumefreddo and Piedmonte, in the east coastal area.

"From Randazzo troops of both Armies continue to advance to the east and north-east.

"Seventh Army troops again made good progress round the north coast and reached Oliveri, eight miles east of Patti. The withdrawing enemy is being relentlessly harassed."

The American Seventh Army, which captured Patti, also took San Angelo, says Reuter.

Yesterday's Allied naval communiqué stated:—

"There has been much naval activity in the Straits of Messina and off the coast of Calabria and Sicily. Cruisers, destroyers, gunboats and light coastal forces are operating without intermission to harass the enemy's ports and shipping and in support of the Army.

NAVAL SHELLING

"On Friday naval forces, which included a gunboat of the Royal Netherlands Navy, which has been in active operation since the beginning of the Sicilian campaign, bombarded hostile positions north of Riposto and south of Taormina.

"In the early hours of Saturday a British naval force again bombarded the harbour of Vibo Valentia, on the south side of the Gulf of Euphemia. Large fires were started in the harbour area, and a coastal vessel was blown up.

"During Friday night a U.S. naval force, working in co-operation with the American Seventh Army in the north-east corner of Sicily, aided in the movement of heavy army equipment. American naval units also bombarded Milazzo in the rear of enemy defensive positions."

Fiumefreddo, about six miles south of Taormina, is the vital road junction where the main east coastal highway from Catania to Messina is joined by the inland road from Randazzo. This was the main route of the Axis forces retreating from Randazzo, which was captured by the Allies on Friday morning.

Taormina, key town on the east coast, is the next main objective of the British troops pushing northwards.

Piedmonte is on the road from Randazzo to the east coast, about three miles north-west of Fiumefreddo.

HEAVY ATTACKS

The German communiqué stated: "The enemy suffered considerable losses in the course of strong attacks in the Northern sector. A German submarine chaser sank one enemy submarine in the Mediterranean."

Yesterday's Italian communique said of the land fighting:—

"On the new position of the Sicilian front Italo-German troops continue to resist tenaciously, and are holding the enemy's impetus."

Alan Humphreys, Reuter's Special Correspondent with the Eighth Army, states:—

The Germans have broken away from the fighting front, and are now withdrawing from Sicily.

Extensive minefields were also laid, and it is these factors only which hinder the Allied advance.

FINAL PHASE

The campaign is now really in its final phase, with the Germans displaying all possible energy in leaving for the mainland as quickly as they can. The ring round Mount Etna is now almost complete as a result of American progress to Francavilla and the occupation of towns along the east coast by the Eighth Army.

David Brown, Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied Headquarters, states:—

The toe of Italy is now a battlefield

Allied air forces have switched the weight of their bombing and strafing attacks to the Calabrian beaches. Intense support is being given by the Allied navies. Cruisers, destroyers, gun-boats and light coastal craft are patrolling the Sicilian and Calabrian shores, harassing ports and shipping.

The German retreat has been considerably accelerated in the past 24 hours, and on the east coast German rearguards have broken off contact and are rapidly falling back on Messina. Since the fall of Randazzo there is no indication of a stand anywhere in the centre of the front.

Steady Retreat to the Coast

The Axis forces are actually splitting apart in the centre, and both sections are retreating steadily towards the coast.

American forces thrusting through from Randazzo have now cut the north-south inland road, but were too late to trap the fleeing Germans. The Axis forces are retreating in excellent order, making the fullest use of mines and demolitions.

Any Axis forces still in the centre of the island have only one road of escape open to them. They can reach the east coast from Francavilla along a road which strikes the sea some five miles north of Fiumefreddo, now in the hands of the Eighth Army.

Pushing ahead towards Messina in three main drives, the Allies have advanced 14 miles along the north coast, five miles along the east coast, and five miles in the centre.

The Eighth Army are now approaching an area below Messina, which is swept by heavy artillery sited near the city. The north coast is free from such attack owing to intervening high ridges. It is, therefore, possible that the Americans will advance more rapidly in the climax of the campaign, and will have a better chance of entering Messina first.

But, as the Germans are steadily pushed back there, booby traps become more numerous. American 7th Army men, in hot pursuit along the north coast near Oliveri, on Saturday swung off the road to a half-open gate. It led to a wide field, across which German units had retreated to cover. As the Americans pushed open the gate the whole roadside blew up. Casualties were considerable. The gate had been wired as a detonator.

Once the Axis troops are confined to the coastal roads for their retreat the constant air attack to which they are now subjected will be increased by incessant naval bombardment.

ROADS BLOCKED

Allied fighters and fighter-bombers are shooting up Axis transport columns until the highways are blocked by tangled wreckage. When the Germans do reach the beaches they use mainly small craft for crossing the Messina Straits. To counteract Allied air attacks the Axis are dispersing their landings on the Italian side. Attempts to disembark troops went on on Saturday night and early yesterday under constant attack by Wellingtons. Allied warships are standing by to prevent any mass evacuation in large ships.

FIRES BURNING IN KHARKOV

Red Armies Advance to Bryansk

A FIERCE last stand is being made by the Germans around Kharkov, while the Russians have captured Karachev, 25 miles east of Bryansk. On the railway from Orel, it is the last major outpost before Bryansk itself.

Harold King, Reuter's special correspondent, cabling from Moscow last night, said Karachev was in flames before the Russian troops entered it. Fires are also burning in Kharkov, and can be seen from the northern outskirts of the town. The Germans there are destroying their stores

A later cable from him said:—"The battle of Kharkov has entered its final stage."

BRYANSK MENACED

Karachev was the centre of the most determined German resistance before Bryansk, the key communications focus of the whole central front, which is now menaced from four points: from Karachev it is exposed to a direct frontal assault; from Zikeevo, the capture of which by Soviet forces yesterday cuts the railway to Sukhinichi and brings the Red Army to a point 36 miles north-east of Bryansk; from Dimitrovsk and Ostrovsky, 40 miles south of Karachev, where another Russian force is advancing westwards to strike at the southbound railway to Kharkov and Konotop; from the Russian wedge driven into the German front in the Spas Demensk area, which threatens to bisect the rearward railway from Bryansk to Smolensk at the junction of Roslav.—(Reuter.)

The capture of Karachev was announced in last night's Soviet communiqué, the text of which is:—

"On August 15 our troops in the Bryansk direction, overcoming enemy resistance after stubborn street-fighting, captured the town of Karachev.

"In the same direction our troops continued the offensive, advanced from six to ten kilometres (three and a half to six miles) and captured 70 localities.

"In the Kharkov direction our troops beat off enemy counter-attacks and forged ahead. Several inhabited localities were captured.

"Our forces advancing in the Spas-Demensk area forged ahead and considerably improved their positions. On other sectors of the front there was reconnaissance activity and exchanges of artillery and mortar fire.

"On August 14 on all sectors of the front 70 German tanks were disabled or destroyed and 64 aircraft shot down."

COUNTER-ATTACKS

The Germans have brought up reinforcements to their threatened front east of Smolensk and have thrown them into heavy counter-attacks in a bid to halt the Red Army's advance in its new offensive, says Reuter's Special Correspondent in Moscow.

Stubborn battles are being fought west of Spas-Demensk as the Russians, meeting now with stiffened resistance, widen and consolidate the wedge driven into the German lines midway between Smolensk and Bryansk.

After a three-days' battle, Soviet forces west of Spas Demensk have made new advances of up to five miles, recaptured 39 more towns or villages, and wiped out 8,000 Germans, says the message.

On the Kharkov front the Germans are gradually losing ground in spite of a determined stand, and have been forced to abandon much of their supplies. Counter-attacks north-west of the city have been beaten off by the Russians, with heavy loss to the Germans, including the destruction of 26 tanks.

Yesterday's German communiqué stated:—"Only local fighting is reported from the southern sector of the Eastern front. The great battle in the area south-west of Byelgorod continues with undiminished violence.

"Wherever the Soviets stormed against out positions they were repelled with heavy casualties. At some points our troops went over to the counter-attack, and, supported by strong formations of the Luftwaffe, smashed enemy shock units which had thrust forward.

"In the area west of Orel and on the front south and south-west of Vyazma numerous Soviet attacks failed in heavy fighting, and with heavy losses for the enemy. South of Lake Ladoga all enemy attacks broke down yesterday.

"The Soviets on Saturday lost 86 'planes and 179 tanks, of which 117 were destroyed in the sector held by an army corps north-west of Yartsevo."

AIR MASTERY

Moscow radio stated last night:—"In the Kharkov sector, where fierce fighting continues, our air force has complete mastery of the skies. The Luftwaffe has suffered a severe defeat in this battle."

Harold King, Reuter's Special Correspondent in Moscow, cabled last night: "The Russians are throwing in unprecedented masses of aircraft over the main battlefronts of their summer offensive. To-day the Soviet Union is celebrating the 25th anniversary of the Red Air Force, and Red Star writes: 'Soviet factories are providing our army with 'planes superior to any the Germans have.'

The supplement to last night's Soviet communiqué claimed that in one sector a Red Army unit fought its way forward, occupying 30 inhabited localities, and wiping out 1,200 German officers and men. It also stated that, north-east of Karachev, Soviet units advanced and captured more than 50 populated places, about 3,000 enemy officers and men being killed.

A supplement to the Soviet communique stated that in capturing Karachev enormous losses were inflicted on the Germans and much booty and many prisoners were taken.

Moscow Radio stated last night that Marshal Stalin has issued an order by which four Soviet infantry divisions which took part in the capture of Karachev are named the Karachev Divisions.—(Reuter.)

Ninety U-boats Sunk in Three Months

—ALLIED CLAIM.

THE President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Great Britain, after consultation with the British Admiralty, the United States Navy Department and the Canadian Department of National Defence for Naval Services, have issued the following monthly statement on the progress of anti-U-boat warfare:—

"1—During the month of July, very poor results were obtained by U-boats from their widespread efforts against the shipping of the Allies. The steady flow of trans-Atlantic supplies, on the greatest scale, has continued unmolested, and such sinkings as have taken place in distant areas have had but an insignificant effect on the conduct of the war by the Allies. In fact, July is probably our most successful month, because the imports have been high, shipping losses moderate, and U-boat sinkings heavy.

"2—Before the descent upon Sicily an armada of warships, troop transports, supply ships and landing-craft proceeded through Atlantic and Mediterranean waters with scarcely any interference from U-boats. Large reinforcements have also been landed in that island. Over 2,500 vessels were involved in these operations, and the losses are only about 80,000 tons. On the other hand, the U-boats which attempted to interfere with these operations suffered severe losses.

"3—Our offensive operations against Axis submarines continue to progress most favourably in all areas, and during May, June and July we have sunk at sea a total of over 90 U-boats, which represents an average loss of nearly 1 U-boat a day over the period.

"4—The decline in the effectiveness of the U-boats is illustrated by the following figures. In the first six months of 1943 the number of ships sunk per U-boat operating was only half that in the last six months of 1942, and only a quarter that in the first half of 1942.

"5—The tonnage of shipping in the service of the United Nations continues to show a considerable net increase. During 1943 new ships completed by the Allies exceed all sinkings from all causes by upwards of 3,000,000 tons.

"6—In spite of this very favourable progress in the battle against the U-boat, it must be remembered that the enemy still has large U-boat reserves completed and under construction. It is necessary therefore to prepare for intensification of the battle, both at sea and in the shipyards, and to use our shipping with the utmost economy to strengthen and speed the general offensive of the United Nations, but we can expect continued success only if we do not relax our efforts in any way."

Safer Milk Supply Campaign

"EXTENSIVE tuberculin testing, efficient pasteurisation and increased control of the dairies by the public health authorities are the only roads to tubercular-free milk," Dr. S. A. Yasin, Ph.D., M.R.C.V.S., yesterday told an "Irish Times" reporter.

"While agreeing with Dr. Somerville Large in the main, I do not think that efficient pasteurisation alone is sufficient," he said. "First, I think, we should get to the root of the trouble, by attempting to eradicate the disease in the animals themselves This can only be done by experimentation, research and control measures, which will require a greater degree of co-operation between the medical and veterinary professions than we have at present. The same applies to other animal diseases. Also, I might mention that the authorities in this country seem to be under the impression that, since extensive experiments in this matter are being carried out in England and elsewhere, there is no need for experimentation at home.

EXPERIMENTS

"They think that we can benefit from the experiences of the others without the trouble and expense of experimenting here. While it is undoubtedly true that we can benefit from the experiences of others, local problems require local methods of combating them, which can only be discovered by local experiments.

"There is another reason," he added, "why thorough tuberculin testing is of paramount importance at present. There has been a suggestion made in Great Britain that in future all cows imported from Eire will have to be tested for disease before exportation from this country. If that happened, a large number of Irish cattle would never leave the country, and we would lose one of our staple industries. The veterinary profession is alive to this danger.

HANDLING

"Assuming that all the herds are well tested for 'T.B.' the danger is still not removed. 'T.B.' may result from the handling of the milk, so that efficient pasteurisation is, as Dr. Somerville Large pointed out, essential.

"But," continued Dr. Yasin, "there is no use testing herds for 'T.B.' and pasteurising the milk carefully if, after pasteurisation, careless handling is going to be allowed to nullify the effects of the pasteurisation. That is why I say that increased control over our dairies by the Public Health authorities, and co-operation with the medical profession and the veterinary profession, is the third great step to tubercular-free supplies of milk."

Axis Attack on Convoy

THE German News Agency claimed yesterday that 32 Allied units were either sunk or destroyed in a German air attack on an Allied convoy of 70 merchantmen, escorted by warships, east of Gibraltar on Friday evening.

The agency said: "Despite the strong fire from all escort and merchant vessels in the convoy, and an artificial smoke screen, the German formations attacked the largest units in the convoy just before dusk. Three merchant ships, totalling between 25,000 and 30,000 tons, one large tanker and two destroyers sank while the attack was still in progress.

"Eight more merchant ships broke into flames, listing heavily. According to latest reports, a total of 32 units, totalling 170,000 tons, were either sunk or destroyed in this attack."

Seven German 'planes were lost.

All the ships (said the radio) were fully laden with supplies for the Sicilian front, and after the attack "the sea was littered with burning wrecks."—(Reuter.)

Reported Drought in Germany

Reports of a serious drought—and stringent "economy" campaigns to meet it—come to-day from the far north, the west, and the extreme south of Germany, a Reuter telegram stated last night. At Lippstadt, Westphalian river town, 25 miles above the Moehne dam, it is stated that "a sufficient supply of water for essential war enterprises is no longer possible."

In Stettin (Baltic coast port) mains water may be used only for absolutely essential purposes. To water gardens or fields, wash cars or take a bath is forbidden.

In Weimar (in Thuringia), south-west of Leipzig, the Mayor, announcing that, owing to the present unusual heat, the capacity of the water works and mains has been greatly exceeded, banned the use of water for spraying roads and gardens, and has threatened to cut off the supply entirely.

ANOTHER RAID ON MILAN TO-DAY

City "Unrecognisable"

MILAN, industrial centre in Northern Italy, received another heavy raid this morning, according to Reuter and A.P.

The raid was stated to be even heavier than Thursday night's. All public services have been paralysed. Telephone and telegraph services are not working, and there are no taxis, trams, or trains. The main station is so badly damaged that trains are unable to enter or leave.

The latest attack started ten minutes before midnight. Bomb explosions could be heard and fires seen from the Lugano in Switzerland.

Rome radio said:—"The Royal Palace in Milan is in flames after Saturday night's raid. The number of casualties is feared to be high." In another broadcast Rome radio said: "Milan is unrecognisable."

Arms Works Bombed

Milan and Berlin were bombed on Saturday night by British airmen, according to a communiqué issued yesterday by the British Air Ministry. Bombs were also dropped on targets in France and Belgium, the communiqué stated.

"On Saturday night aircraft of Bomber Command attacked the Breda armaments works and other war factories and communications in the industrial area of Milan. Visibility was good, and first reports show that the bombing was well concentrated.

"Mosquitos bombed objectives in Berlin. Aircraft of Fighter Command on intruder patrols destroyed two enemy aircraft. Airfields and railways in France and Belgium were attacked, and an E-boat was sunk near the Channel Islands. One bomber is missing."

Two separate, though simultaneous, attacks were made on the city on Saturday night, according to the British Air Ministry's News Service, one on the great Breda Arms Works, in the Sesto San Giovanni district, and the other on industries and railways nearer the centre of the town. Fires were seen soon after the bombing began.

Karl Zeppelin, Air Correspondent of the German Overseas News Agency, yesterday warned Germans to expect daylight raids throughout the winter, says Reuter. "German air circles expect no lull in the American daylight raids," he declared. "The present state of technical development makes air attacks possible at any time, even in autumn and winter."

AIRCRAFT TARGET

A United States communique on Saturday night stated:—

"A large force of Liberator heavy bombers of the Ninth U.S. Air Force attacked the important aircraft production factory and assembly plant at Weiner Neustadt, 27 miles south of Vienna, in daylight on Friday, dropping more than a third of a million pounds of high explosives.

"Direct hits were scored upon factory buildings and large columns of smoke were seen rising throughout the target area. Scores of bursts were seen among some 400 fighter aircraft parked in rows along the ground.

"Enemy fighter opposition was weak, and the ground defence was apparently taken by complete surprise. All our aircraft are accounted for."

This is the first time that Greater Germany has been raided from the Middle East, says Reuter.

American Raid on St. Omer

Marauder (B 26) medium bombers of the United States Army Eighth Air Force Air Support Command attacked the German fighter air base at St. Omar, France, early yesterday, says a United states announcement in Britain last night. The ships encountered flak, but all returned. British fighter protection held off the few enemy fighters seen, and no action was reported.

Six American Warships Lost

The United States Navy Department last night announced the loss of six United States warships, including the submarine Pickerel and the destroyer Maddox, in action, says a Reuter telegram from Washington last night.

The communiqué said:—

"The U.S. submarine Pickerel failed to return from patrol operations, and must be presumed lost. The next-of-kin of personnel have been so informed.

"Mediterranean.—The following U.S. naval vessels have been lost in action against the enemy in operations in this area:—The U.S.S. PC 458 (submarine chaser), sunk June 4 as the result of an underwater explosion; the U.S.S. Redwing (submarine rescue vessel), sunk June 29 as the result of an underwater explosion; the U.S.S. Sentinel (minesweeper), sunk July 11 in landing operations off Sicily; the U.S.S. Maddox (destroyer), sunk July 10 by aircraft off Sicily.

"Atlantic.—U.S.S. Plymouth (gunboat), sunk a short distance off the North Carolina coast on August 5 as the result of an underwater explosion.

"Next-of-kin of all casualties aboard the above-named vessels have been notified."

Associated Press says that the sinkings brought to 110 the number of American warships reported sunk, overdue and presumed lost, or destroyed to prevent capture since the war started. Eleven submarines and 30 destroyers were included in the total of 110 vessels.

SAFE FROM SCRATCHING TORMENT

My little dog scratched and bit herself so much that sores broke out. I started giving her Bob Martin's and now she is completely cured—a truly happy dog and in perfect condition.—Mrs. I. F.D.

SUMMER is a difficult time for dogs. Warm weather aggravates the food impurities which collect in a dog's blood, thus setting up an intense irritation under the skin. This irritation is the cause of scratching. Since a dog's skin is non-porous, he cannot cool and purify his blood by perspiring. The only way of overcoming this handicap is to give your dog Bob Martin's Condition Powders.

Just 'one a day' ensures the pure, rich bloodstream on which canine health depends. Start conditioning now and make your dog a 'plus' dog, so fit and happy he'll never want to scratch!

You can get Bob Martin's in packets, 6d. and 1/-, from all chemists and corn merchants.

Bob Martin's Condition Powders keep dogs fit without Calomel—and you'll jump out of bed in the morning full of vim and vigour.

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned, and you feel sour sunk, and the world looks punk.

Laxatives help a little, but a mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pints of bile flowing freely and make you feel up and up. Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 1/3 and 3/-

DON'T LET YOUR FEET LET YOU DOWN

Is the spirit willing, but your poor old feet the handicap? Then get them into a Radox footbath. Radox-charged water drives out pain, feet feel like 'new.' From all Chemists in 1/6 and 2/6 packets.

RADOX IN THE PINK PACKET

Outsider of Three Scores at Baldoyle

ALTHOUGH fields were not large at Baldoyle on Saturday backers did not fare well, and, in fact, met with several costly disappointments in the course of the day. Edvina found her task too much in the Fingall Handicap, which was won by Safari, who led throughout and then unseated her jockey, W. Howard, after they had passed the post, but he, fortunately, escaped with slight bruises.

R. J. O'Ryan rode a particularly well judged race in the Metropolitan 'Chase on Hamlet, the outsider of the three, to come with a strong run after the last fence and beat Kai Lung cleverly. Wrong Note was a good winner of the Someton Plate, in which Barroussel proved a very disappointing favourite. Details :—

Phœnix Unbeaten in Cricket League

MERRION'S bid to break the unbeaten league record of Phœnix failed at Anglesea road, the champions winning an interesting game by 78 runs. With C. Mara's fast ones coming up very quickly the Phœnix batsmen were seldom at ease, but a grand knock by Frank Quinn, who had six fours and a six in his 54, and splendid batting by O. O'Connell and K. Quinn put Phœnix in a favourable position.

With N. Fox taking the first three wickets for seven runs Merrion were fighting a losing battle, and when J. C. Boucher found his length they were dismissed for 86.

A TIMELY STAND

Thanks to a timely stand by O'Maille and Fenlon when Pembroke had lost seven wickets for 57, Pembroke beat Civil Service in the Park by 3 wickets. Meehan was again the best of the Service batsmen, and Ward, who has not played much this season, showed a return to his best form with the ball for Pembroke.

DRAW AT CLONTARF

In a protracted friendly match at Castle avenue on Saturday Monkstown played an even draw with Clontarf. Despite good bowling by Hill for Clontarf, Monkstown knocked up the good score of 131, and Clontarf had equalled this after an early collapse, when bad light put an end to play.

CAVAN IN G.A.A. FINAL

By PAT'O.

CAVAN ... 1—8 CORK ..... 1—7

In a battle of styles at Croke Park yesterday, Cavan were the cool, polished, experienced side; Cork the young, eager, bustling group. In a year's time this new Cork team will have built into a formidable combination—they have size, pluck and stamina. They bustled Cavan off their usually smooth game, and yet it was Cavan's steadiness that won in the end. They combined better and played accurate football within range. Cork dissipated many scoring chances from good positions; their place-kicking was very poor, but they never ceased to persevere and were dangerous to the final whistle.

Duggan opened the scoring with a point for Cork; P. Smith equalised, but O'Connor and O'Donovan put Cork ahead with a point each. Smith and T. P. O'Reilly levelled the scores, only for Lynch to put Cork in the lead once more, and a goal by Cronin and a point by Lynch gave them a half-time lead of 1—5 to 0—3.

Rogers got two points for Cavan early in the second half and Stafford equalised with a goal. Smith pointed for Cavan and Aherne for Cork, these scores being followed by points for Cavan by Rogers and T. P. O'Reilly and one for Cork by Aherne.

The attendance was 30,222, and the gate receipts £1,956.

CENTURY BY WALDRON

Civil Service and Merrion met in the Senior League at Phœnix Park yesterday, Merrion winning by 125 runs. The highlights of the game were a sparkling century by P. Waldron—his second of the season and an excellent contribution by D. O'Connor. Waldron batted for two hours and ten minutes and hit 14 fours, while O'Connor hit brightly for 65 minutes his principal strokes being 10 fours.

Great Hammer Throw by B. Healion

BERT HEALION, the A.A.U.I. champion, on Saturday at the Clonliffe Harriers' sports at Milltown made another great bid for the world's hammer throwing record. With his second throw he did 192ft. 11ins., the head of the hammer dropping dead just inside the paling at the unreserved stand.

Last year on the same ground he had a throw of 192ft. 6ins., but it was found that there was a slight decline in the ground, and the hammer was a shade short of 16lb. Now he operated in the opposite direction, and with a strong wind blowing across his left-hand side.

The holder of the record is Pat Ryan, a native of Pallasgreen, who covered 189ft. 6½ins. in America in 1913, but Dr. O'Callaghan a few years ago at Fermoy was credited with over 196ft., which was ratified by the N.A.C.A.I., but has yet to be considered by the governing bodies.

Other strong features of the meeting were the high jumping of the A.A.U.I. champion, B. O'Rafferty, who, against the wind, cleared 6ft. 2ins. gross, and the excellent team work of Civil Service in the relay race.

100 Yards (final)—H. M. Loughlan (Donore H.) (9½), 1; B. Fleming (9th Old Boys) (6), 2; K. P. Carson (Donore) (5½), 3. Inches. 9.4 secs. 16 competed.

220 Yards (final)—W. McGettrick (9th Old Boys) (22), 1; S. O'Riordan (Donore) (17½), 2; W. Phelan (unattached) (22), 3. 1½ yds.; 1 yd. 22.6 secs. 19 competed.

Kemp and Miss Lombard Shine in Bray Tennis

By P. D. MacWEENEY

AS has been the case in all the open tournaments in Dublin this season, there was an absence of close competition in the Co. Wicklow lawn tennis finals, at Bray, on Saturday. C. A. Kemp never seemed likely to lose the advantage of a splendid start against A. E. Fannin in his men's singles title, the women's and mixed doubles titles were won decisively, and the finish of the men's doubles was disappointing.

The best match was the women's singles, in which Mrs. E. G. Lister captured the first set from the Irish champion, Miss E. F. Lombard, and fought hard to the finish, even though she could win only three games in the second and third sets. Apart from her defeat in the women's doubles semi-final in this tournament, Miss Lombard has made a clean sweep in every event open to her this season, and the manner in which she controlled the ball, in a difficult wind, after losing the first set, showed her at her best. She lost an early three-love lead to an opponent who combined deep driving with well-chosen advances to the net. After capturing the first set, Mrs. Lister was pinned to the back of the court by a stream of drives which found the corners regularly, and in finishing off the match, Miss Lombard made remarkably few mistakes.

After his partial eclipse at Fitzwilliam and Lansdowne, Kemp came back to his form of last season. He was far too decisive both off the ground and in the air for Fannin in the singles, and in the men's doubles gave a brilliant display with T. G. McVeagh after they had lost the first set to love. This match provided a surprising swing from one side to the other. Kemp and McVeagh, resuming a partnership which won the Isle of Wight championship seven years ago, could do nothing right at the start, whereas Egan and Fannin could do nothing wrong. The second set was level pegging to 3-all, but McVeagh was getting more and more active and reliable on the low volleys, and Kemp was beginning to get the winners overhead. With the sets levelled, Egan and Fannin began to crack, and in the fourth set they simply went to pieces, the others having an easy task to finish off the match.

Irish Industrials Well Supported

RATHER quieter conditions prevailed on the Dublin Stock Exchange during the past week. This was not so much through lack of interest on the part of the investing public, but to the fact that good-class shares are rather scarce.

The recent change of interest from Irish Industrials to cross-Channel issues, especially Textile shares, was not maintained. This, however, was only to be expected, as the rise in these shares was much too rapid, and was based principally on post-war prospects. British Celanese 10/- Ord., for example, were as high as 36/- at one time, while the price at the close of business had receded to 32/6. Some circles are talking these shares considerably higher, but investors would be well advised to exercise caution, and treat them as a speculative purchase.

Ordinary shareholders of the Alliance and Dublin Consumers' Gas Company received a very pleasant surprise when the directors announced a dividend of one per cent. The profit for the half-year ended 30th June will, of course, be £70,620, and it should be borne in mind that the accounts for the previous six months

The Lisbon Liver

Portugal, until recently in a unique position among European countries in its distribution of food supplies, has been brought into line. The food riots which took place last month were not caused by a shortage of food; they were caused by the fact that food, though available, was at such a high price that, while the rich could live in luxury, the poor had to go hungry. The first step in reform has been to restrict restaurants to the serving of only lunches and dinners, and those of a maximum of two courses. Conditions for the man in the streets of Lisbon ought to be improved by this regulation, and by the others that are expected to follow; the wealthy Portuguese may have less variety in his food, but the quantity, one presumes, still will be adequate. The real sufferers, it appears, will be those whose livelihood depends upon the unhappiness of their neighbours' stomachs. The Portuguese always have been great trenchermen, with a special leaning towards "sugar and spice, and all things nice"; and, as a natural result, the Douro digestion is one of the worst in the world. A report with the authori . of Reuter behind it says that Lisbon has more liver specialists, in proportion to its population, than any other city; and it is an old Portuguese custom that a bottle of dyspepsia mixture shall be on every table, and that every host shall take, not salt, but bicarbonate of soda, with his guests. The new restrictions will ease the pangs of every stomach, except that of the medicine manufacturer; they will benefit every waistline but that of the waistline-reducer. The lot of those who batten upon the ills of others is, indeed, a sad one, since the greatest good of the greatest number invariably must spell their ruin. For the rest of the war, one may expect the depressed classes of Portugal to consist exclusively of purveyors of pink pills. Why did peace-time Portugal endure this slavery to stomach ailments? Perhaps, it was a nation of masochists, and enjoyed its own tortures. At any rate, one may suppose that in Portugal a very special meaning was attached to the saying: "Eat, drink, and be merry, for to-morrow we die."

FILM NOTES

By Our Cinema Correspondent.

Arabian Nights (Carlton) was produced by Walter Wanger, who has, for many years, had the reputation of sedulously avoiding the average soul-destroying claptrap of Hollywood. Occasionally he has had lapses, but, for the most part, his pictures have been above the average, and one of them (the Hitchcock-directed "Foreign Correspondent") was brilliant. To put it rather bluntly, this is one of his lapses. The Arabian Nights offers enormous scope for a production of complete originality and impressive splendour, but the producer has fought shy of the oriental magic of the book, and has offered us instead the orthodox Hollywood highest common factor of legs, virility and technicolour. It is acted with infectious vigour by Jon Hall, Sabu and Billy Gilbert, and its agreeable colour and businesslike direction carry it through successfully. It should be thoroughly enjoyed by juveniles, and by those who go to it with no preconceived ideas about the book.

I Walked With a Zombie (Royal) is a skilfully-produced spine-chiller, whose eerie moments come off most effectively. Jacques Tourneur's direction is original and interesting, and he has built up his atmosphere of the supernatural with some cleverly-underlit scenes in a manner reminiscent of John Ford. This is definitely what Sellar and Yeatman would describe as a memorable film.

Salute for Three (Metropole) introduces us to Miss Betty Rhodes in her first starring rôle. According to the daily newspaper advertisements, Miss Rhodes is the girl with the (sic) "ne-eah" in her voice. My first reaction to this information was the humane thought that if this was, indeed, the case, the girl was deserving of deep sympathy. A "ne-eah," however, turns out to be a perfectly common sob-cum-slur, such as is perpetrated by Miss Vera Lynn, and it is quite pleasant to listen to in small doses.

The story that provides the continuity for this epic is considerably older than Kilmashogue, but it is agreeably presented. Its most entertaining aspect is a ten-minute comedy dancing interlude by Jeanne Lorraine and Roy Rognan, which is most enjoyable.

The support, Henry Gets Glamour, is marred by the fact that we get far too much of Henry.

The Peterville Diamond (Corinthian) is a straightforward romantic comedy thriller.

IRISH FILM SOCIETY'S STUDY COURSE

More than 100 applications from people desiring to undergo an intensive course of study in the theory and practice of amateur film-making have now been received by the Irish Film Society's School of Film Technique at the North Earl street studio. But the society is only desirous of undertaking the training of twelve students, and so during the next week or so there will be a rigorous scrutiny of applicants' qualifications to determine those best suited for the work. The comprehensive eight months' course, which has already been mapped out, will include an introductory period on general artistic appreciation, then an intensive study of authoritative works from the society's well-equipped library, which covers every aspect of film-making, and a practical course on camera work and production. One-and-a-half-hour lectures will be given twice a week until March next, when an examination will decide who are to act as assistants on the society's film unit.

The film unit completed, the society intends to produce an ambitious series of 16 m.m. films on such subjects as Irish agriculture, arts, crafts, folk culture, etc. Roughly twelve women are included in the one hundred applicants, many of whom have previous experience of miniature cine-film work.

Directing the course of studies will be Liam O'Laoghaire and Geoffrey Dalton. Scientific aspects of the work will be handled by Peter G. Sherry, M.Sc., John White and Kevin O'Kelly.

BIRTH RATE AND POTATO DIET

A theory that the high birth rate in Ireland has been due partly to the people's potato diet is being advanced by one of the world's greatest experts on the potato, Dr. Nathan Salaman. Dr. Salaman, who was a former director of the Potato Virus Research Station at Cambridge, has been in Ireland within the last few weeks gathering material for the Irish chapters in his forthcoming book on the potato, which will deal with the historical, sociological and dietetic aspects of the subject. In the course of his visit to Ireland he found in an Irish Times paragraph matter to correlate with the theory he is advancing about the connection between the potato diet and fertility.

It was the paragraph in which Mr. Flood, the Superintendent of the Dublin Zoo, attributed the sharp increase in the monkey birth rate at the Zoo to the change over to the potato diet from the usual bananas nut diet which was given to the monkeys in peace-time.

During his stay in Ireland Dr. Salaman was in touch with officials of the National Library and the Department of Agriculture, and with members of the staffs of University College and of Trinity College. He was particularly interested in the Folklore Commission's large collection of material relating to the potato and its cultivation in Ireland. This material he described as being a gold-mine of information.

Dr. Salaman is to return to Dublin in October, when he is to give the Finlay Lecture at University College.

KERRY RED CROSS THANKED

Accompanied by a cheque for 50 guineas for the Red Cross funds in Kerry, British Overseas Airways has sent a letter to the Divisional Director of the Red Cross for Co. Kerry, Dr. Quinlan, thanking him "for the magnificent work put in by members of the Irish Red Cross on the occasion of the loss of our Sunderland flying boat." The letter goes on to say: "There is no doubt that but for the prompt response to the call for medical aid, so willingly given, the list of survivors would not be proportionately so high."

Among those who have sent letters of congratulations to the Cork Red Cross on winning the inter-divisional competitions in Dublin are An Taoiseach and Major-General Costello, both of whom pay tribute to the intensive training and hard work done by the Red Cross organisation in the Cork area.

SARAH PURSER
AN APPRECIATION

OBITUARY notices of Miss Purser may have conveyed the knowledge that her death has robbed us of a distinguished Irishwoman, but to her friends those notices must seem strikingly inadequate. They hardly explain why it was that in her nineties she was still always recognised as the most delightful of visitors, and the one it was always the greatest joy to visit. Of course, it is impossible to convey any true and complete concept of that great, living, real person. She herself helped to make this difficulty by her undeviating modesty. She refused such tributes as honorary degrees or other public honours. She permitted no recognition of generous acts or selfless services. Even a passing reference to them was banned. Any form of praise had a most irritating effect on her.

Austerity towards herself and service to the things she loved—to her country, to the community in which she lived, and to the arts—were so natural to her that to commend her for them would jar upon her as it might jar upon a prime minister to be praised for not pilfering the public purse.

As she practised the art of painting, and for years made it the means of her livelihood, she naturally received some recognition as an artist, though another artist of equal distinction might have demanded and received a greater fame.

But when one has spoken of her capacity as a painter and as a judge in the realm of the visual arts, one hesitates to refer to her sensitiveness to—and informed judgment of—beauty in music. One is so ready to suspect that such apparent catholicity is no more than a snobbish pose. But the simple fact is that Miss Purser was extraordinarily catholic. In the art that she practised, her power to appraise the work of her contemporaries and of the earlier masters did not close her mind to its most modern forms, its most startlingly modern developments. And her joy in the visual arts did not deny to her a deep and enlightened appreciation of music, of literature and of drama.

If a work in any of the arts was derided or hailed as a supreme work of genius, it made no difference to her. The probity of her mind made it impossible for her to pretend to anything other than her own intimate experience of it. She was simply incapable of that cowardly conformity, of that mental flunkeyism that praises because those who have the world's ear praise, or damns because it is fashionable to damn. And this penetrating power, this capacity to receive what is new was not limited to her earlier years. A month ago one would have spoken of it in the present tense. At no time would she accept what she considered to be ignoble or inferior because it was new, or reject anything in which she saw possible merit merely because it seemed to depart from the traditional.

It may be remarkable that great age did not weaken her perceptive and receptive powers; but it is not remarkable that her integrity of character and courage should remain unshakable, for they were an integral and essential part of herself.

It was that integrity, that essential honesty with herself no less than the humour that was interwoven in all her conversation that made it such a joy to talk with her. Indeed, one might say that her humour came as a natural effect of the clarity of her mental vision and the courage and independence of her judgments.

The richness of her mind is a possible explanation of the admiration that she won from all her friends. But it does not explain the deep and abiding affection that she inspired. She was rich with riches of the heart as well as of the mind. Her genius for friendship, her generosity of soul, her passionate loyalties were not less than her intellectual lifts. She worked tenaciously and untiringly for other artists. No commercial traveller ever "pushed" the wares of his firm as she "pushed" the stained glass works when she had no longer a personal interest in it.

She never claimed merit for Irish patriotism. With nationalist friends she might even describe herself as a Protestant Unionist. She certainly did not think that patriotism required her to blind herself to national faults. But she gave a more unstinting service to her country than many give who boast o exclusively Gaelic blood. Obviously she had been a passionate supporter of Parnell. When she harked back to him the tenseness of her feelings could not be concealed.

In the days when Arthur Griffith ploughed his loneliest furrow, and when his friends were the fewest, she was one of the few, and her house was open to him. In those later years known as the "troubled years" her house was also open and her help available to other friends involved in that struggle. When Arthur Griffith was told that Miss Purser described herself as a "Unionist," he looked up through his glasses with that typical smile, and said: "We must have been making a mistake; we ought to have been trying to convert the people to Unionism—of the Sarah Purser brand."

Now Sarah Purser is gone, and, probably, only her friends can know the loss our country has sustained.

DRAMA AT DONABATE

Complimenting the Donabate Parish Council on their second annual dramatic competition, Mr. Brinsley Macnamara spoke of the improvement of the Pageant, at which he and Mr. D. J. O'Donovan, County Commissioner, adjudicated at St. Patrick's Hall, Donabate, on Saturday. The first and second prizes shared between Miss Alymer (as Sarah Curran) and Miss Kitty Regan (as Countess Markievicz), and the third prize went to Miss N. Kelly (Irish Colleen). The Rev. J. J. FitzPatrick, President of the Donabate Parish Council, presided. A vote of thanks to the adjudicators was proposed by Mr. S. Moran and seconded by Mr. P. Burke.

WHERE NORTH AND SOUTH NOW AGREE

With the ending of double summer time in Northern Ireland yesterday, travellers making frequent use of the Great Northern Railway rail and 'bus services will be able to dispense with one bulky time-table. Hitherto the one hour's difference in Six-county and 26-county times had necessitated the issue by the company of a separate time-table for each area, but when clocks were put back an hour in Northern Ireland yesterday, both times coincided once again. Gone now is the necessity for cross-Border passengers having to check their watches and work out neat little timing problems by reference to the company's twin train schedule guides.

It had been all so puzzling to some travellers. Until yesterday, for example, a person travelling from Newry to Dundalk left at 8.35 a.m. (double summer time), arriving at 8.25 a.m. (Eire time). You were, so to speak, arriving at your destination before you had started your journey. For the winter, however, these apparent anomalies have been done away with. On questions of time, at any rate, both North and South are now temporarily in agreement.

The King of Greece yesterday led a Service of Intercession at the Greek Orthodox Church in Cairo. Many leading Allied personages attended. —(Reuter.)

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By Myles na gCopaleen

FOLLOWING the (disastrous) fire at the Royal Dublin Golf Club (An Cumann Rioghdha le Golf), a Dublin evening paper said that "by 5.30 a.m. the brigade had the fire under control, but all that remained were the five chimney stacks looking grim in the grey dawn."

A fine performance indeed. I'll bet they had the big reciprocating Merryweather out, looking grey in the grim dawn.

Thus passes one of the oldest links with the past. I feel it badly because I spent my "youth" as a caddy there.

Augusta Regina

True that my worship, the celebrated ex-Irishman, never went through Dublin University. (Let me murmur that I went round by College Street and if you know an older "joke" than that, you are ever older than you, Luke.) Nevertheless, and though he professed (being a professor) to regard my Heidelberg Ph.D. as a little joke in rather bad taste, Mahaffy loved me and it is known that that old ruffian Tyrrell had a warm corner i. h. h. f. m. Dowden and I never hit it off—both of us had shockingly poor aims and that irritating old tin can is still sitting in the roof-gutter of the house opposite our rooms (after all these years).

I was put in mind of those far-off days recently when I came across that old copy of Lady Gregory's GODS AND FIGHTING MEN with the preface by W. B. that Seumas gave me one day in, I think, it was 1905, a party there in the studio there was myself, Seumas, Cassie, poor Mary Duncan and that Stuart fellow. I often wondered what became of him, and I think Coussins was there, too. There's note in the back of that little book, and without any question or doubt about it it certainly does bring you back. Hold on now till I read it for you.

"Four years ago," says Lady G., "Dr. Atkinson, a Professor of Trinity College, Dublin, in his evidence before the Commission of Intermediate Education, said of the old literature of Ireland: It has scarcely been touched by the movements of the great literatures; it is the untrained popular feeling. Therefore, it is almost intolerably low in tone—I do not mean naughty, but low; and every now and then, when the circumstance occasions it, it goes down lower than low . . . . If I read the books in the Greek, the Latin or the French course, in almost every one of them there is something with an ideal ring about it—something that I can read with positive pleasure . . . . . But if I read the Irish books, I see nothing ideal in them, and my astonishment is that through the whole range of Irish literature that I have read (and I have read an enormous range of it) the smallness of the element of idealism is most noticeable. . . And as there is very little idealism there is very little imagination. . . The Irish tales, as a rule, are devoid of it fundamentally."

I remember now that what amused me at the time was the idea of this cod in the frock coat certifying that that head paranoiac, that last word in nordic refrigeration, Finn Mc Cool, was 'not naughty.' In those days, of course, we cared for nothing except Pater. I used to be in great demand at parties to recite the bit about burning always with that hard gem-like flame.

The most enormous range of Irish literature I ever heard of is the Cook O'Lynn's Aga—you can't get them now, of course (the war).

FORESTERS' BENEFIT SOCIETY

The secession of three branches—in Dundalk, Passage West and Ravensdale—was accepted by the Irish National 'Foresters' Benefit Society at their annual convention in Dublin yesterday. Mr. L. McCooey, Dundalk, said that his had been one of the biggest branches in the country. Unity and nationalism had become only catchcries, and people now joined the society solely for the benefits it provided, he said.

Alderman R. Corish, T.D., Mayor of Wexford, who was re-elected Head Chief Ranger, described a document read by the secretary of the Dundalk branch, as "sarcastic in many ways." He had accused the executive of prejudice, but the prejudice was on his side. Alderman Corish said that another branch had given fear of a repetition of what had occurred after the last general secretary's death as a reason for secession. There was, at that time, a private audit, and some things had happened which should not have happened, but a public auditor was subsequently appointed and there was no danger of a repetition.

Mr. M. J. Lawlor, general secretary, in his annual report, hoped that those who had remained loyal to the society would ensure against a repetition of such a catastrophe as overtook the society in 1929. They had learned their lesson and must profit by it. They were now in a much better position than in 1940.

Mr. J. Smith was re-elected High Sub-Chief Ranger, Mr. Edward Quinn Executive Council treasurer, and Mr. P. Purcell, Mr. M. H. Burns, Mr. W. Corrigan, Mr. J. Hughes, Mr. J. Smith, Mr. T. Morris were appointed Executive Council trustees.

NEW SUBSTITUTE FOR GLASS

Lucite, the transparent plastic that is protecting airmen in the "greenhouses" and gun blisters of United States fighting 'planes, will probably come home from the battle fronts a full-fledged rival of glass. One of its most important new uses will be in the optical field, where glass has never had a competitor of any kind.

Cameras, for instance, will probably be fitted with Lucite lenses, and finders of the same material. Since these parts will be cast to the exact shape in moulds, instead of being laboriously ground by hand, the instruments will be far less expensive to buy. Lucite eyeglasses of to-morrow, it is claimed, will never break, no matter how carelessly handled; and, once the danger of glass splinters is removed, "contact" lenses, worn directly against the eyeballs, will come into universal use.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
SUNDAY NIGHT.

"GRAMMAR may be taught in a ditch, technology cannot be. It requires apparatus and services," declared Professor R. S. Hutton, presiding at yesterday's annual meeting of the City and Guilds of London Institute. He pointed out that the whole future livelihood of the British people depended upon their competitive position in the post-war export trade of the world, and now that the people's overseas investments had been so depleted they would be more than ever dependent upon regaining a leading position in the export trade through the efficiency of their old industries and the establishment of new enterprises. There was a marked correlation, said Professor Hutton, between the growth of foreign competition and the growth of scientific and technological education in the countries which had challenged Britain's position in the export trade, and he cordially welcomed the Board of Education's decision to spend £12,000,000 on the building of technical, commercial and art colleges.

I.L.P. and Mr. Larkin

An I.L.P. Foundation Member's Certificate has been presented to Mr. Jim Larkin, T.D., senr., who has been addressing the I.L.P. Summer School on the political situation in Ireland. Mr. Larkin said that Labour was the only party which could solve the partition problem, and that Labour in the North and South was united on this issue. Mr. Maxton described Mr. Larkin as a great pioneer in three historic developments of the working-class—the foundation of the political Labour movement in Britain, the organisation of the "unskilled" workers, and the liberation of the working-class in Ireland from clerical domination. Mr. Bob Edwards, I.L.P. President, said that thousands of Socialists throughout the world had been inspired by Larkin's contributions to the Labour struggle in Britain, Ireland, America and Russia.

510 Gns. for Ram Lamb

The price of 510 guineas for a ram lamb, paid at the Suffolk Sheep Society's annual August show and sale at Ipswich, beats by 10 guineas the previous record price. No fewer than 33 ram lambs made three figures, and the average price was over £75. Formed by a fusion of the old extinct Norfolk horned breed with the Southdown, the Suffolk, of great merit as a mutton producer, is spread far over England and Eastern Scotland, and has become a strong, active, hornless sheep, jet black in face and legs, and carrying a dense fleece of Down type wool.

"Paid For" Holidays

Holidays with pay have long been the aim of all workers, but "paid for" holidays are a new thing to many who are attending the volunteer agricultural camps now flourishing all over the country. Of course, those who attend the camps have to work to get their pay of 1/- an hour, but the camps are providing a welcome change from the general rut of business life, and all who attend them are unanimous in praising the grand time to be had there. The farmers are also loud in their praises of the holiday-makers' work. Women, surprisingly, have proved more adaptable than men, and women at the camps outnumber men by at least two to one.

Lime for Farming

The production in Scotland of higher grade lime will pass the 200,000 tons mark during 1943-4—an increase of more than double the present output. Because of the extraordinary war-time demand for agricultural lime, new sources have been developed within recent months. A special excavator and screening plant has been set up to deal with shell sand at John o' Groats, Caithness, and a new plant, capable of producing 12,000 tons a year, has been started at Loch Tay, while extensive use is being made of the fine deposits at Banffshire and at Blairgowrie.

COMBINED CANINE CLUB'S SHOW

THERE was a large attendance at Messrs. Goff's Repository, Lower Mount street, Dublin, on Saturday last, when the Combined Canine Club's twenty-fourth members' show was held. There were upwards of 200 entries in all classes, from an Irish Wolfhound to several types of toy breeds. The judges were Miss A. M. Finny and Mr. J. Whiteside.
